Improving Physical and Behavioral Health Outcomes for States

Through improved behavioral health care coordination, Delaware has been able to achieve the following outcomes to facilitate better patient care and more efficient use of healthcare resources.

200,000+
behavioral health referrals since 2018

98%
improved referral response time by 98% for one psychiatric hospital in Delaware

180+
referring and receiving entities in the state participate in the DTRN referral platform

80%
of follow-up referral appointments kept

Since 2018, Delaware has partnered with Bamboo Health to deploy multiple behavioral health solutions to improve access to care and improve outcomes.

Through the Delaware Treatment and Referral Network (DTRN), powered by OpenBeds® from Bamboo Health, the state is simplifying the referral and acceptance process for behavioral health treatment. DTRN provides public-facing stakeholders and healthcare providers across Delaware with real-time information on available treatment resources to foster better collaboration and coordination, speed up access to care and improve outcomes.

DTRN replaces this manual and outdated process by providing one application to refer, share and communicate bed availability. By providing real-time facility availability, two-way digital communication, data analytics and clinical decision support, DTRN helps providers get individuals the care they need sooner.
